STYLIST'S BEAUTY GURUS:
ANITA, EVIE AND SAMANTHA

THE BEAUTY TEAM SORT THE GOOD STUFF FROM THE FLUFF

CAMOMILE SILKY CLEANSING OIL, £10, THE BODY SHOP

SAMANTHA FLOWERS, STYLIST'S BEAUTY EDITOR, SAYS: It's tricky to find a budget cleansing oil that lives up to its pricier competitors but here is a glowing example. Massage onto dry skin then remove with warm water and a damp face cloth. Mascara literally slips off and skin is left feeling nourished, not tight.

MON EAU DE LINGERIE, £26, GUERLAIN

EVIE LEATHAM, STYLIST'S BEAUTY DIRECTOR, SAYS: There's something ever so French about scenting your lingerie and this smooth blend of black cherries, fresh bergamot and Bulgarian rose won't leave marks on fabrics, even silk. Consider it a perfect excuse to invest in lingerie worthy of such luxuries.

TREATMENT BALM, £20, PAUL & JOE

ANITA BHAGWANDAS, STYLIST'S BEAUTY AND FEATURES WRITER, SAYS: With a bit of ingenuity this can be used for anything: brushed through brows to tame, swiped over cheeks for a dewy lift, patted over fly-aways to stop them, well, flying away and the often ignored glossing over of dry elbows. An essential.

HYPNÔSE ULTRA DAZZLING EYESHADOW IN QUARTZ TAUPE, £21, LANCÔME

SAMANTHA SAYS: I'm not easily swayed from my nude make-up but when it comes to party season, I like to up the eyeshadow factor. This mousse-like formula can create the sheerest veil of colour or a bold statement eye and the shade flatters most skintones.

VELVETINES IN RED VELVET, £11.50, LIME CRIME

ANITA SAYS: A provocative opinion, but for me red lipstick should always be matte. The problem is, though, your lips become horribly dry leading to an entirely un-chic zombie mouth. Luckily, Lime Crime's new Velvetines is the most creamy, nourishing matte liquid lipstick I've tried. Dry lips, begone.

OVERNIGHT BODY TREATMENT, £49, SARAH CHAPMAN

EVIE SAYS: A body moisturiser must be exceptional for me to finish a bottle before I get distracted by another. Now, facialist Sarah Chapman has packed the same active ingredients as her cult Overnight Facial into this luxurious body serum and I've nearly finished the lot.
